Dear Reservoir Views students, families and local community members,

Last week Deputy Premier and Education Minister the Hon. Ben Carroll announced at The Age Schools Summit that all Victorian public school students from prep to grade 2 would be taught to read using systematic synthetic phonics instruction commencing in 2025.

I believe this is a positive commitment by the government, up until this announcement it has been up to school principals to ultimately decide the approaches/methods used in schools to teach students to read. This approach for Victoria will see a shift for most schools who are currently adopting a balanced literacy approach.

This announcement validates the work we have committed to evidenced based approaches for the last 5 years at Reservoir Views Primary School. Under the guidance of our Learning Specialist, Bec Sanders, we have been using systematic synthetic phonics across our prep to grade 2 cohorts since 2020. We have strategically committed to developing the capacity of our school staff and supported our work with various resources including decodable readers for use at home and at school. Continuing this work is also a key focus in our next School Strategic Plan that I will share with our community early next term once it is finalised.

The Department of Education will release resources and lesson plans for schools who need to transition to this approach. The good news for us is that as we are already implementing this approach so there is nothing to change. I do hope they come and have a look at what we do here at Reservoir Views. I firmly believe we are a beacon school in terms of the work we do across the board to cater for our community.

What is systematic synthetic phonics? Is an approach that explicitly teaches the relationship between sounds and letters to read words. A systematic synthetic phonics programme teaches children to decode words by saying the sounds represented by the letters and blending those sounds to read the words. For example, children are taught to read 'ant' by looking at the letters and saying, "/a../n../t/ ... ant," and 'sheep' by looking at the letters and saying "/sh../ee../p/ ... sheep". They are taught how to read words accurately and independently from the start. As the name suggests, it follows a structured and sequential way of showing learners how to read. Using systematic synthetic phonics is only one aspect of reading (decoding) and students require explicit instruction in all the 'Big 6' of reading - oral language, phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary, fluency and comprehension. At Reservoir Views, we ensure our students have daily, explicit teaching and practice in all of these areas.

What is balanced literacy? Balanced Literacy is an approach based on the assumption that children learn to read naturally through exposure to texts. Students are taught to use picture clues, context and some letter-sound relationships to read the words off the page. Students may memorise sight words such as the M100 words and spend a lot of time on 'comprehension strategies' as well as independently reading 'just right books'. Balanced literacy has been the major approach to reading across Victoria for a number of years. Evidence suggests that this is not the most effective way to teach students how to read. Reservoir Views has moved away from this approach over the last 5 years.

NAIDOC WEEK

NAIDOC Week celebrations are held across Australia in the first week of July each year (Sunday to Sunday), to celebrate and recognise the history, culture and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. NAIDOC Week is an opportunity for all Australians to learn about First Nations cultures and histories and participate in celebrations of the oldest, continuous living cultures on earth.

There will be lots of different NAIDOC Week activities taking place during the second week of the school holidays.

Please visit <https://www.naidoc.org.au/> if you are interested in learning more about NAIDOC Week.

'Urapun Muy', from the Kalaw Kawaw Ya dialect of the Top Western Islands of the Torres Strait, means 'One Fire'. The title of this work pays homage to Torres Strait Islanders and Aboriginal people everywhere, as we all have that one fire: our passion for our culture.' Deb Belyea.

1/2 NEWS

We are excited this week to be researching a special sea creature for our information reports. As part of the writing process, we have found information on our favourite sea creature, written dot points and started drafting different sentence types (questions, statements and exclamations) into our information report. We will publish these over the next week. In Inquiry, we are creating a habitat for our sea creatures, and will use what we know about their features to make a model. We can't wait to share our work with you!

In the Classroom

In Maths, we have been using bar models, number lines and MAB to help us solve addition and subtraction problems. We have been reading about real life scientist and 'Shark Lady' Dr. Eugenie Clark, whose love of these sea creatures began with a visit to the New York Aquarium as child.

Reminders

- Permission and payment for swimming is now due. Please contact the office if you require assistance with this.
